

NATURAL GAS PRICES TO SURGE GLOBALLY

Fort Hill Natural Gas wants to alert our customers in advance of a predicted price increase this winter. Gas companies around the world are seeing spikes in prices due to pressure in the natural gas supply chain and a resurgence of global high-demand following the pandemic lockdowns.

The American Gas Association, noted that “natural gas utility customers are not paying the day-to-day prices for natural gas that we see in the headlines.” That’s because utilities buy gas through long-term contracts that lock in prices and shield customers from some of the volatility.

Even with these contracts, gas prices are expected to be the highest they’ve been in 13 years, creating much concern about winter pricing for all natural gas customers.

FIND WAYS TO CONSERVE ENERGY

With the expected increase for all natural gas customers, Fort Hill Natural Gas wants to provide you with some simple and helpful year-round energy saving tips that allow for smart operating practices within your home.

TIPS TO SAVE ENERGY AND MONEY

Clean or replace air filters regularly

Lower your thermostat and/or replace with a programmable thermostat

Open shades during the day and lower at night (winter months)

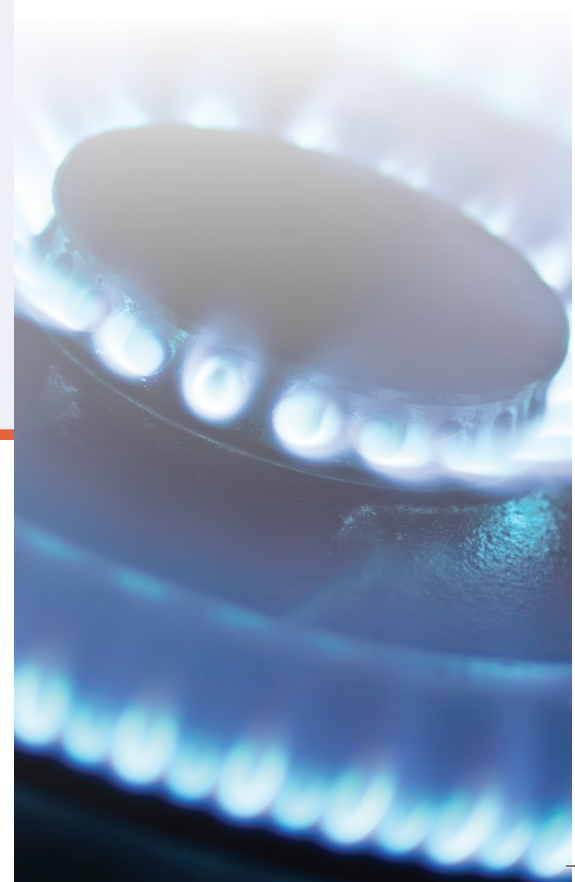

Make sure your dryer lint filter is clear

Wash full loads of dishes or clothes and do so in cold water
